British Columbia

WHY SHOULD I WORK IN THIS PROVINCE?
British Columbia has a number of collaborative programs, the result of a unique and innovative partnership between Doctors of BC and the provincial government. A productive working relationship with the government has led to several initiatives including programs that target health care funding, gaps in care, and support doctors to provide quality patient care and enhance professional satisfaction. British Columbia also offers a unique lifestyle. There is no other province in Canada that can offer the diversity provided by British Columbia — from remote mountain areas and large urban centres to island communities — there is something for everyone.

Alberta

LIVING AND WORKING IN ALBERTA
Alberta is a beautiful province, ranging from boreal forests to wide open prairies to the majestic Rocky Mountains. With a flourishing economy and a growing population of nearly four million, Alberta represents an excellent opportunity for a newly practising physician. There are plenty of choices, whether you would like to work in an urban centre or a rural community.

PROVINCIAL INITIATIVES
On May 30, 2013, the AMA membership ratified a new seven-year agreement with Alberta Health. The AMA agreement will offer new opportunities for physicians as a profession to have a voice in how the system is designed and delivered. It’s an environment in which government is required to consult with the AMA on matters that “touch and concern” physicians.
• Reconfirmation of the AMA’s role
• Sub-agreements covering electronic medical records, primary care, and system-wide efficiencies and savings
• Dispute resolution mechanisms
• Evergreen components for stability between agreements

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
Alberta offers a wide range of general practice and specialty practice options. According to the Alberta Physician Link employment opportunities website, the specialties in the province with the opportunity for work include:
• General practice/family medicine
• General practice with a sub-specialty in palliative care
• Anesthesiology
• General surgery or obstetrics
• Obstetrics, pediatrics and psychiatry
