Dr. Bruno L’Heureux, MD

CMA President, 1994-95
Université Laval, 1979
General practice

Dr. L’Heureux became the youngest physician to head the CMA when he assumed the Presidency in 1994 at age 39. The new President said he hoped to be seen as a role model for younger doctors who were interested in both organized medicine and clinical practice. “If my presidency accomplishes nothing else but to be a model for young physicians to get involved, look out for their colleagues and work together, that will be a rich reward,” he said. Dr. L’Heureux also served as President of the Quebec Medical Association and served as the CMA’s representative at the World Medical Association.
