Dr. John A. Mullin, MD

CMA President, 1882
Victoria University College, 1859
General medicine

Dr. Mullin gained professional experience in New York before he started to practise in Hamilton, where he developed "a large clientage" and also worked as an adviser to an insurance company. Following his death, the Hamilton Medical Association reported: "Assiduously devoted to the exacting duties of his profession, he strove to keep abreast of the biological discoveries of the time, and watched with keenness those modern experiments which have thrown light on the life history of microscopic organisms."
